CONTENTS

Editorial data 1

Eli Amir and Baruch Lev, Value-relevance of nonfinancial information: The wireless communications industry 3

Terry Shevlin, The value-relevance of nonfinancial information: A discussion 31

Anne Beatty, Sandra Chamberlain, and Joseph Magliolo, An empirical analysis of the economic implications of fair value accounting for investment securities 43

Elizabeth A. Eccher, K. Ramesh, and S. Ramu Thiagarajan, Fair value disclosures by bank holding companies 79

Marcia Millon Cornett, Zabihollah Rezaee, and Hassan Tehranian, An investigation of capital market reactions to pronouncements on fair value accounting 119

Thomas Lys, Abandoning the transactions-based accounting model: Weighing the evidence 155

William H. Beaver and Ellen E. Engel, Discretionary behavior with respect to allowances for loan losses and the behavior of security prices 177

Ron Adiel, Reinsurance and the management of regulatory ratios and taxes in the property–casualty insurance industry 207

Douglas A. Shackelford, Earnings, regulatory capital, and tax management: Comments 241

K.R. Subramanyam, The pricing of discretionary accruals 249

Eero Kasanen, Juha Kinnunen, and Jyrki Niskanen, Dividend-based earnings management: Empirical evidence from Finland 283

Victor L. Bernard and Douglas J. Skinner, What motivates managers' choice of discretionary accruals? 313

Mohan Venkatachalam, Value-relevance of banks' derivatives disclosures 327

David Aboody, Market valuation of employee stock options 357

Douglas J. Skinner, Are disclosures about bank derivatives and employee stock options 'value-relevant'? 393

Acknowledgement 407

Call for papers 411

Index 413

COMPLETE VOLUME

0165-4101(199608/12)22:1-3;1-0